Society Profile

Members. The International Parkinson and Movement Disorder Society (MDS) is an international professional society of clinicians, scientists and other healthcare professionals who are interested in Parkinson's disease, related neurodegenerative and neurodevelopmental disorders, hyperkinetic movement disorders and abnormalities in muscle tone and motor control. The spectrum of clinical disorders represented by MDS includes, but is not limited to: ataxia, chorea, dystonia, gait disorders, Huntington's disease, myoclonus, Parkinson's disease, restless legs syndrome, spasticity, tardive dyskinesia, tics and Tourette syndrome, and tremor.

In addition to more than 7,000 individual members, 27 national Movement Disorder societies collaborate with MDS as Affiliate Members.

Mission. The mission of MDS is to operate exclusively for scientific, scholarly and educational purposes; to encourage research; to provide forums, such as medical journals, scientific symposia and International Congresses, for sharing ideas and for advancing the related clinical and scientific disciplines; to encourage interest and participation in the activities of MDS among healthcare and allied professionals and scientists; to collaborate with other related professional and lay organizations; and to advance the neurological sciences pertaining to Movement Disorders.

History. MDS was founded in 1985 on the initiative of Professors Stanley Fahn and C. David Marsden, whose leadership and vision guided the expansion of clinical expertise and research in this field. It merged in 1992 with the International Medical Society for Motor Disturbances. Publication of the journal Movement Disorders began in 1986, and the first International Congress was held in 1990. In 2013, The Movement Disorder Society officially changed its name to the International Parkinson and Movement Disorder Society, in order to recognize the growing importance of Parkinson's disease care and research within the field of Movement Disorders.

Activities. MDS produces two journals: Movement Disorders and the online journal Movement Disorders Clinical Practice. The Society also manages 13 clinical rating scales specific to Movement Disorders. Of these, the widely used MDS-UPDRS and UDysRS have been validated in a combined 16 languages. MDS is in the process of validating scales for an additional 11 languages.

The MDS Continuing Education program serves more than 11,000 clinicians, other health professionals, researchers, and policy makers throughout the world each year. Content delivery modalities include live courses, enduring materials and online CME. The target audience for the Society's Continuing Medical Education programs both MDS members and non-members, who interact with patients living with movement disorders. MDS enhances patient care by advancing the science, medical knowledge and competence in the area of Movement Disorders.

MDS Members by Regional Section: 7,012 Members as of 7/30/17
